

INTRODUCTION (ACCESS) TO LAW

An Introductory Course to Law by Distance Learning

○ Get a taste of the Law...

If you are interested in Law but are not sure about committing yourself to studying for a legal qualification, you can enrol on our home study introductory Access course, which is designed to help you to assess your aptitude through study and assignments. Module 1 of the course gives you an introduction to all the main branches of the Law, and offers a practical way to try out home study before you embark on longer programmes. Module 2 helps you to develop the skills that you will need for learning law. (Note: this course does not give you entry to university degree course for which you need GCE Advanced Level passes.)

Introduction (Access) to Law: Module 2

How to Study Law

○ As a natural follow on to Module 1, Module 2 How to Study Law, will take you into the practical business of becoming a law student, helping you to develop the skills you will need in researching and citing cases and statutes. You can also take it as a standalone module. You can take the Modules in any order but we normally recommend Module 1 first unless you already have a good grasp of basic law.
